INCIDENT MANAGEMENT SITUATION REPORT
MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 4, 2000 - 0700 MDT
NATIONAL PREPAREDNESS LEVEL V

CURRENT SITUATION:

A total of four new large fires were reported in the Southern Area. Crews reached containment goals on six large fires in the Northern Rockies and the Southern Area. Initial attack activity was light in all areas except heavy in the Southern Area. A large upper level low pressure system over the Pacific Northwest will bring a threat of light shower activity and high elevation snow to most of the northern tier of the western states. A strong area of high pressure will remain over central Texas, which will bring continued hot temperatures. Very high to extreme fire indices have been reported in areas of the western states, North Dakota, Kansas, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Mississippi and Texas.

OUTLOOK:

```
 FIRE WEATHER WATCH FOR THE WEST DESERTS AND CENTRAL VALLEYS OF UTAH
FOR GUSTY WINDS AND LOW RELATIVE HUMIDITY.
```

A strong area of high pressure will continue over central Texas. This will bring continued hot conditions with only widely scattered afternoon thunderstorms. Highs will be in the mid 90's to around 110 with relative humidity 25 to 45 percent. Winds will be southwest to northwest 10 to 15 mph.

A large upper level low pressure area over the Pacific Northwest will bring a threat of light shower activity and high elevation snows to portions of the Pacific Northwest, Intermountain West, Great Basin and Northern Rockies. The Central Rockies and Southwest will have partly cloudy skies with isolated showers and thunderstorms.

Temperatures in the northern portion will generally be in the 50's to mid 60's in the mountains and mid 60's to 80's elsewhere. The southwest and central Rockies temperatures will be in the 60's and 70's mountains and $80^{\prime}$ s to near 100 valleys. Winds will be from the west to southwest at 15 to 30 mph .

Relative humidity will be in the mid teens to upper 20 percent except in the single digits across the warmer deserts. In portions of the North, relative humidity of 40 to 60 percent is expected.
