Predictive Services Discussion

Strong offshore winds are expected in California today into the weekend. The low pressure trough over the Great Basin will move east today as a high pressure ridge builds from north to south along the West Coast. This ridge will lead to strong north to northeast winds Friday through Saturday along with lowering humidity in northern California. In southern California, a moderate to strong Santa Ana wind event will begin Friday night and continue through Sunday. The high pressure ridge will move over much of the West next week with warm and dry conditions.
