Predictive Services Discussion: A strong ridge of High pressure over the southern U.S. will expand from coast-to-coast as it amplifies over the high plains and into the Northern Rockies. This subtle eastward shift in the pattern will provide just enough mid-level moisture and instability over the Rocky Mountains of Colorado and New Mexico for widely scattered thunderstorms and slightly cooler temperatures. Precipitation from thunderstorms will be limited to the Upper Midwest along a stationary frontal boundary. The Pacific Northwest will become increasingly cool and moist as a short wave trough and associated cold front edges inland the next few days. In Alaska, a series of storms will continue to bring scattered showers and thunderstorms to the interior with wetting rain in the South Central region.

Today's discussion is from the Fireline Safety Category.

TAKING A NAP NEAR THE FIRELINE

Firefighting is often exhausting work and firefighters can find themselves needing to sleep while on the fireline. Before pausing to rest, firefighters must weigh the following considerations:

Are lookouts posted? Discuss who that lookout can be. Can the lookout on the knob across the draw watch over you or does it need to be your partner on the fireline alternating rest times?

Is the area free of hazards? (Falling snags or rolling materials) Discuss what you need to do to create a safe resting area.

Are you still within agency work and rest guidelines? Review what these guidelines are.

Does your crew need a break? Have they been pushed too hard? Talk about situations where you need to simply take yourself and/or your crew off the fire for uninterrupted rest.

To reduce risks:

- Keep lookouts posted; rotate lookouts.
- Communicate crew conditions and status to supervisor or chain-of-command contact. Have firefighters discuss ways that they find to rest on the fireline and suggestions for methods to alternate shifts for more effective firefighting.
