Predictive Services Discussion: High pressure will dominate most of the interior U.S., keeping dry and unseasonably warm conditions through most of the country. An upper low over northern Mexico will reinforce windy conditions across southern California. A cold front will move through the East bringing scattered rain to the Northeast and parts of the Mid-Atlantic. Showers will also form along the Gulf Coast and across Texas. A front in the Northwest will bring rain to coastal Washington and Oregon. Temperatures will remain mild to warm over most of the country with cooler fall conditions in New England and the Great Lakes regions.

Escape Routes 2 (LCES)  Operational Engagement Category

Escape Routes are the path the firefighter takes from their current locations, exposed to the danger, to an area free from danger. Notice that escape routes is used instead of escape route(s). Unlike the other components, there always must be more than one escape route available to the firefighter.

Escape routes are probably the most elusive component of LCES. Their effectiveness changes continuously. As the firefighter works along the fire perimeter, fatigue and spatial separation increases the time required to reach the safety zone.

The most common escape route (or part of an escape route) is the fireline. On indirect or parallel fireline, situations become compounded. Unless safety zones have been identified ahead, as well as behind, firefighters retreat may not be possible.

- Have you ever timed an escape route? If not how do you judge its effectiveness?
- Describe a time when you were uncomfortably distant from your escape route.
- Describe a method you have used to communicate an escape route to your crews.
