Additional wildfire information is available through the Geographic Areas at <http://gacc.nifc.gov/>

Predictive Services Discussion: High pressure will remain firmly anchored in the eastern U.S., keeping warm and dry conditions in place. A cold front will sweep through the Plains bringing rain and thunderstorms the Midwest with snow trailing the front over the northern and central Rockies and the High Plains. The southern and central High Plains from Colorado to New Mexico will have windy conditions. An upper ridge over the West will keep dry conditions in place but offshore flow will produce windy conditions along the southern California coast. Temperatures will cool significantly across much of the western and the northern Plains. Cool to mild conditions will remain over New England and the Great Lakes. Very warm to hot weather will continue across the South and the Mississippi Valley.

UNFAMILIAR WITH WEATHER AND LOCAL FACTORS INFLUENCING FIRE BEHAVIOR

Weather / Fire Behavior Category

- Ask questions of local experts! What kinds of questions would you ask?
- Does the operational period plan give you adequate weather and information? What kinds of weather forecasts can you get? What other weather or local information do you look for in the shift plan?
- Can you get information from resources that have been on the fire? What questions will you ask of the crew that you are replacing?
- Is there any other way to obtain information? List common sources of information on weather and local factors (Examples: Web based weather Activity Planner, Point Forecast Matrix, NOAA Internet Briefing)
- To reduce risks:
 - Base all actions on current and expected fire behavior.
 - Post lookouts.
 - Establish escape routes and safety zones.
 - Take extra caution! Discuss a fire where you relied on information from the local unit (perhaps where your fire knowledge and experience was very different from how they did things—southeast or Alaska).
 - Recognize and report visual indicators (clouds, WX obs., cold front passage, inversion breaking)
