Predictive Services Discussion: A strong front will move through the Rockies and into the Plains, bringing wintery conditions to the central U.S. High pressure will build in the East and West. Snow and ice will spread from the central Rockies to the Upper Midwest with rain and thunderstorms from the central Plains to the Texas coast. A few snow showers will linger in the northern Rockies and the Cascades. Another system will enter the West Coast late, bringing rain to Northwest and increasing snows in the Cascades. Dry conditions will remain in the East except for lingering lake effect and mountain snows from upstate New York to Maine. Temperatures will remain cold across much of the West and the North. The South will continue warm to very warm.

UNBURNED FUEL BETWEEN YOU AND THE FIRE

Operational Engagement Category

It is important for firefighters to recognize unburned fuel between themselves and the fire as Watchout Situation #11. Often it is not possible or practical for direct attack on a fire. Before attempting indirect attack and any time the firefighter is in a position where there is unburned fuel between them and the fire, the following questions must be addressed immediately:

- Can you see the fire or are you in contact with someone who can? Discuss situations you might find yourself in where you are out in the green and cannot see the fire. What can you do?
- Is fire spread in a direction away from you? Do you consider the potential for fire spread? Are you safe if the wind switches?
- Will your position be defensible when the fire reaches you? Talk about what must be taken into account when building indirect line or approaching a fire through the green.
- Is your line anchored? Discuss how you anchor indirect line.
- Are your escape routes and safety zones adequate? What is adequate?
- Are weather indicators constantly changing?
- To reduce the risks:
 - Post lookouts
 - Consider a different location. Review situations where you constructed indirect line or approached a fire through the green and how you provided for your safety.
