Prescribed Service Discussion: The ridge of high pressure over California and Oregon will compress as a trough drops south from British Columbia into Washington State. Slight cooling will occur across Oregon and northern California. Scattered mainly wet storms are expected to develop across the North Cascades, Okanogan, and Northern Rockies. Scattered wet storms are also possible across the Four Corners Region, Wyoming and northeastern Nevada as monsoonal moisture continues to rotate around the high pressure ridge. Temperatures across California will be less hot...but still hot. In the East, a trough of low pressure over the Great Lakes will promote cooler conditions along and east of the Mississippi River. Scattered storms will be possible along the Atlantic Coast as a cold front exits land for the ocean. In Alaska, the weakened high pressure ridge over the interior will migrate east toward the Yukon Border and will allow for more showers and storms to move into the Interior. Temperatures will be above average.

Hydration

Firefighter Health & First Aid

Dehydration is the result of the body trying to regulate its temperature naturally through sweating. Maintaining body fluids is essential for sweating. You must hydrate before, during, and after work.

- Studies conducted on wildland firefighters indicate that during fire suppression activities firefighters need to drink a minimum of 1 quart of fluid each hour of work.
- Before work you should take extra fluids to prepare for the heat. Drink 1 or 2 cups of water, juice, or a sport drink before work.
- While working drink at least 1 quart of fluid per hour. Drink as much as you can during the lunch break. Water is your greatest need during work in the heat.
- Hyponatremia (abnormally low concentration of sodium in the blood) as a result of excessive water intake a potentially life-threatening complication and can be prevented when rehydration is enhanced by fluids containing sodium and potassium, or when foods with these electrolytes are consumed along with water.
- After work it is important to continue drinking to replace fluid losses. Thirst always underestimates fluid needs, so you should drink more than you think you need.
- Unacclimatized workers lose more salt in the heat so they need to pay particular attention to salt replacement.
- Don't overdo salt intake; too much salt impairs temperature regulation. Excessive salt can cause stomach distress, fatigue, and other problems.
- You can assess your hydration by observing the volume, color, and concentration of your urine. Low volumes of dark, concentrated urine or painful urination indicate a serious need for rehydration. Other signs of dehydration include a rapid heart rate, weakness, excessive fatigue, and dizziness.
- Rapid loss of several pounds of body weight is a certain sign of dehydration. Rehydrate before returning to work; continuing to work in a dehydrated state can lead to serious consequences, including heat stroke, muscle breakdown, and kidney failure.

Discussion Points

- What are you doing right now to ensure that you are hydrated?
