Predictive Services Discussion: High pressure over central Alaska will begin to move east as a large area of low pressure over the Aleutian Islands begins to move southeast. Showers and storms will move across much of the state and could provide much needed moisture to many areas. To the south, a dry cold front will move into the Pacific Northwest and stall. The Four Corners high pressure area will move east into the central Great Plains. This will allow for convective moisture to move further north from the Southwest into the Great Basin. In the East, near average conditions are expected as the center of the hot high pressure ridge remains to the west.

In Country Not Seen In Daylight

Operational Engagement Category

Often firefighters arrive on a fire after dark. This is recognized as Watchout Situation #2. Before safely fighting fire in country not seen in daylight, firefighters must be able to answer the following questions:

- Can the resources you are replacing give you a thorough briefing? Identify whom you might get information from. Can you meet up with the departing overhead/resource leaders?
- Can you observe the area/use scouts? List ways you could observe the area you need to work.
- Have escape routes and safety zones been thoroughly scouted and marked for night use? Talk about what constitutes an escape route and a safety zone; who would identify them; and in what ways might they be marked.
- Have potential dangers been located; can they be mitigated? What are the dangers associated with Watchout Situation #2? How can they be worked around?
- Reduce the risks by:
- Posting lookouts.
- Checking communications.
- Retreat if you have doubts about your escape routes or safety zones, or the situation becomes too complex. Give examples of arriving on a fire after dark and what was done to allow you to fight fire safely in country not seen in daylight.
- Identifying prominent geographic features.
