Predictive Services Discussion: Offshore northeast to easterly flow is expected to strengthen across the Pacific Northwest and into portions of northern California, with warm to hot temperatures. Elevated to critical conditions are likely as east to northeast winds $10-25 \mathrm{mph}$ with gusts $30-50 \mathrm{mph}$ develop amid relative humidity of $6-20 \%$ for the Okanogan Valley, Columbia Basin, and near and west of the Cascades in Oregon and Washington, with gusty offshore winds in portions of northern California as well. Winds are forecast to peak during the evening, with poor overnight humidity recovery of $15-35 \%$. Breezy and dry northerly winds are also likely across the remainder of the northern Intermountain West but with cooler temperatures.

Hurricane Kay will approach the southern California coast, with strong east winds and low relative humidity possible, especially for the Transverse Ranges, before the arrival of increased moisture. Isolated mixed wet and dry thunderstorms are possible across the southern Sierra to the central coast as well. Good relative humidity recovery is likely tonight for much of southern California as Kay nears, with heavy rain and flooding, especially near recent burn scars, for far southern California into southwest Arizona. Showers with scattered thunderstorms and cool temperatures are likely to continue along and east of the Divide in Montana and Wyoming through the central Plains and into the western Great Lakes. Isolated mixed wet and dry thunderstorms are likely in the greater Four Corners area, with a surge of Gulf of Mexico moisture bringing widespread showers and thunderstorms to the Southeast, including possible flooding.

Building Fireline Downhill With Fire BelowOperational Engagement Category

As a rule, construct line moving uphill. Many firefighters have lost their lives attacking wildland fires from above. If there is no practical alternative to constructing line downhill, proceed only after weighing the following considerations:

- Has the area been scouted for fire perimeter and behavior? Discuss what you need to know about the fire perimeter and fire behavior before building fireline downhill with fire below.
- Will the wind direction be at your back? Will it stay at your back? Talk about how winds can change when you are on a slope (e.g., time of day, upslope and downslope breezes, etc.).
- Is the area free of chimneys and gullies? How would you negotiate your line location if there were chimneys and gullies below where you want to work?
- Are there adequate safety zones and escape routes? How do you maintain adequate safety zones and escape routes as you progress downhill?
- Can you complete the burnout downhill as you work, providing an anchor point and safety zones? Discuss how you decide to carry the burnout with you or wait until you have tied into a fireline down below.
- Have lookouts been posted? What should they be monitoring?
- Have you established good communications? What are some of the dangers of poor communication with lookouts and crews working towards you? Describe the benefits of maintaining good communications.
- Can the line be completed and burned out before the fire reaches it? Discuss how this would affect where you locate the line.
- Do you have adequate resources to complete the assignment? What additional resources might you need to safely take on an assignment that includes building fireline downhill with fire below? How many resources do you want to engage?
- Is aerial support available if needed? What benefits can aerial resources provide? What might be an added danger from aerial resources in this type of situation (common denominators)?
- Has everyone been briefed on the assignment, fire behavior, weather, communications, escape routes and safety zones, hazards, and tactics? Discuss who might provide this briefing, where they would receive their information, and where and when it might occur.
